

MESSAGE FROM THE NEW BRUNSWICK PROVOST

As Provost, I am delighted to welcome you to our faculty community at Rutgers University–New Brunswick.

We are at an exciting time in the timeline of our university, having recently completed the celebration of our milestone 250th anniversary in 2016. It culminated in a historic Commencement Address by President Obama during which he noted that, “America converges here. And in so many ways, the history of Rutgers mirrors the evolution of America – the course by which we became bigger, stronger, and richer and more dynamic, and a more inclusive nation.”

Our dynamic and diverse student body (representative of 136 nations) is the most diverse student population in the Big Ten and is an example of how “America converges here”. Our faculty also come from all corners of the world and excel in disciplines from A(erospace Engineering) to W(omen and Gender Studies). This is the university of the 21st century and we are proud to be Rutgers’ flagship campus.

I have always considered teaching students a joy and working with our first-rate faculty here in New Brunswick a privilege. Please feel free to contact me with questions at nbprovost@rutgers.edu and to share your experiences. I look forward to getting to know each of you.

Best Regards,

Lily
